Issue 01 | September 2026

At C Piano, we believe music is about far more than learning notes—it is about nurturing curiosity, confidence, courage, calmness, and competence. I look forward to another inspiring term of making music together.

Welcome to the New Term

Welcome back! I hope you all had a wonderful summer and are feeling refreshed for an exciting new term at C Piano.

As we gradually settle back into our routines, our focus this autumn will be preparing for our annual studio celebration in November, where we'll recognise each student's musical achievements and enjoy sharing music together.

A heartfelt thank you to all the parents who took the time to vote on topics for our very first newsletter. Your ideas and encouragement have shaped this publication, and I hope it becomes a helpful and enjoyable resource for every piano family.

Looking back, our Summer Piano Contest was one of the highlights of the year. Beyond the performances themselves, I witnessed children growing in confidence, encouraging one another, and discovering the joy of sharing music. They experienced nervous heartbeats, excitement, pride, and even disappointment—but also learned that perseverance matters more than prizes. These are the moments that shape resilient, confident musicians, and I couldn't be prouder of every student who stepped onto the stage.
